

CALL FOR INTERNATIONAL STUDY MOBILITY PROGRAM FOR UNDERGRADUATE STUDENTS 2027/2028

Vicerectorate for Internationalisation

Executive Summary

The Vice rectorate of Internationalization at USPCEU is now accepting applications for the 2027–2028 International Study Mobility Program, which is open to undergraduate students interested in completing part of their studies at foreign universities.

Purpose

To foster students' international exposure through academic stays at partner universities around the world, via the Erasmus+ programs, bilateral exchange agreements, special bilateral programs, or international dual degree programs.

Eligibility

Eligible students include:

- Students enrolled in undergraduate programs in their 2nd, 3rd, 4th (in the case of dual degrees), and 5th (for rotating medical students) years at the USPCEU. Citizens of the EU or of countries participating in Erasmus+, or those with a residence permit or refugee status in Spain.
- Students who meet the academic (Annex I) and language (Annex II) requirements.

Key Deadlines

- Application submission: October 20 through November 20, 2026.
- Applications submitted after the deadline will not be accepted.

Types of Mobility¹

- Erasmus+ (EU Member States and countries associated with the program)
- Bilateral Agreements
- Special Bilateral Programs
- International Dual Degrees

¹ Erasmus+: Mobility at universities in European Union member states and countries associated with the program.

Bilateral Agreements: Mobility at partner universities outside the Erasmus+ framework, through specific agreements signed by the University.

Special Bilateral Programs: Mobility programs with specific academic or institutional characteristics that entail an additional cost for the student.

International Dual Degrees: Programs that allow students to earn a degree from USPCEU and another from a partner foreign university simultaneously.

Key Documentation

- STEP 1: Application Form
- STEP 2: Language Proficiency Form, if you wish to apply for placements where instruction is conducted in English, French, German, Italian, and/or Portuguese.

CALL FOR APPLICATIONS FOR THE 2027-2028 INTERNATIONAL UNDERGRADUATE STUDY ABROAD PROGRAM

The Office of the Vice Rector for Internationalization at CEU San Pablo University (USPCEU) is announcing the 2027–2028 International Undergraduate Study Mobility Program, in accordance with the following

Terms and Conditions

1. Purpose and Basic Information Regarding the Application

1.1. Purpose of the call

This Call for Applications sets forth the selection criteria and exchange conditions for USPCEU students who wish to participate in a study abroad program at a foreign university during the academic year covered by this call.

1.2. Applicants

Students who are citizens of the EU or other countries participating in the Erasmus+ program, or who hold a residence permit or refugee status in Spain; who are enrolled in a bachelor's degree program; who meet the academic requirements specified in this call for applications (Annex I); and who have demonstrated the required language proficiency (Annex II) are eligible to apply.

1.3. Type of Mobility

Students may participate in this mobility program under the European Commission's Erasmus+ Program (Erasmus+), through Bilateral Exchange Agreements, Special Bilateral

Programs, or International Dual Degree Programs signed between the USPCEU and other foreign universities.

1.4. Documentation

To participate in the International Student Mobility Program, students must review the information available on the intranet (under the “INTERNATIONAL” section, “OUTGOING” subsection), where information regarding this call for applications will be updated. See the following link.

Students must complete the following forms:

- APPLICATION FORM (Deadline: October 20 through November 20, 2026): Late mobility applications will not be accepted. Mobility applications from students who have not completed the formal application form will also not be accepted.
- LANGUAGE PROFICIENCY FORM: This form must be completed only by students who wish to be included in the ranking for French, English, German, Italian, and/or Portuguese. If this form is not completed, the student will be included in the ranking without a language designation.

Students must submit an official language certificate demonstrating a minimum level of B2. Deadline for submitting certificates in English, French, German, Italian, and/or Portuguese: October 20 through November 20, 2026. Late applications will not be accepted. Students who choose destinations requiring them to enroll in courses taught in Italian or Portuguese will have an extended deadline to demonstrate a minimum level of B1. Non-Spanish-speaking students who need to enroll in courses taught in Spanish will also be granted an extended deadline to demonstrate a minimum B1 level. In any case, for study abroad programs in Spanish, Italian, and Portuguese, a B2 level is recommended to get the most out of the academic year.

In exceptional cases, if the university chosen by the student requires the submission of a certificate other than the one provided by the student, a brief, one-time period will be granted to correct the omission.

2. Academic Requirements for Participation in the Mobility Program

2.1 Student's Academic Performance Prior to the Exchange Program

The USPCEU establishes the following as essential requirements for a student to participate in a study abroad program:

- 1) that the student has earned a minimum number of credits toward the bachelor's degree they are pursuing prior to the exchange (see Annex I for the specific criteria of each faculty). For students pursuing multiple degrees concurrently, this calculation will be based on the degree for which they are applying for the exchange;
- 2) The student must not have any courses remaining to be enrolled in during the 5th or 6th enrollment period of the academic year in which the mobility program takes place. If a student has outstanding courses in the 5th or 6th exam session, the Office of the Vice Rector, after consulting with the faculty, may grant exceptional authorization for the exchange; however, the student may not enroll in those courses at the host university, and they must always be taken at the USPCEU (either during the academic year of the exchange or afterward). Faculties may establish specific criteria (see Annex I) regarding these 5th and 6th extraordinary exam sessions to ensure students' academic performance.

If a student is concurrently pursuing two bachelor's degree programs and fails to meet the established requirements, an exceptional review will be conducted to determine whether the student meets the requirements for a specific degree program; in such a case, the student may only participate in an exchange program for that specific degree program.

If a student fails to meet the above requirements, they may request an extraordinary review of the denial of the exchange program from the Office of the Vice Rector for Internationalization. This request must be submitted in writing to the Office of the Vice Rector (erasmus@ceu.es), accompanied by the necessary documentation for evaluation. The student must abide by the decision of the Office of the Vice Rector, which will take into account the student's academic performance and any relevant circumstances in order to approve or deny the exchange, as appropriate.

2.2. Academic Planning for Mobility: Mobility Semester, Credits, Learning Agreement, Exams.

2.2.1 Selection of the degree program / academic year for the exchangeⁱ

Generally, students will participate in the exchange program for a single degree program, even if they are pursuing two bachelor's degrees simultaneously. In the case of students in dual-degree programs, students may enroll in courses from various academic years (for example, the 3rd and 4th years, or the 4th and 5th years) of the degree program chosen for the exchange; and/or take distance learning courses from the CEU degree program that they cannot enroll in at the host institution, provided they have the approval of the degree program director. In exceptional cases, some partner universities allow students to enroll in courses from different degree programs or faculties, making it possible to pursue a simultaneous dual degree during the exchange. This situation is rare and occurs only in very specific instances.

The exchange program can be undertaken starting in the 3rd year (in the 3rd, 4th, or 5th year). To this end, students are advised to consult with their faculty academic advisors to better plan their exchange. Likewise, other factors should be considered, such as difficulties finding housing at some destinations (in such cases, the university recommends opting for full-year or second-semester exchange programs to facilitate the search for housing). Additionally, the fourth and fifth years have a higher number of elective courses in some degree programs, which facilitates the recognition of CEU courses. These general recommendations should be evaluated on a case-by-case basis for each destination and degree program, in consultation with the academic coordinators.

2.2.2. Choosing the Credit Load for the Exchange Program

Students must adhere to the established minimum and maximum ECTS credit recognition limits. The minimum and maximum recognition of ECTS credits earned during the mobility period (including ECTS credits taken at the host university and ECTS credits taken through distance learning at CEU) will be as follows (academic coordinators may establish other limits in duly justified exceptional cases):

SINGLE-DEGREE PROGRAM		DUAL DEGREES (*)
Host University		Host University
Semester-Long Stay		Semester-Long Stay
Minimum	Maximum	Minimum	Maximum
12 ECTS	30 ECTS	12 ECTS	42 ECTS
Annual stay		Annual stay
Minimum	Maximum	Minimum	Maximum
24 ECTS	60 ECTS	24 ECTS	90 ECTS

() Students enrolled in a dual degree program may take the same number of ECTS credits as specified in their respective study plans. This option is always subject to the host university allowing enrollment in more than 30 ECTS credits per semester or 60 ECTS credits per academic year. Most host universities limit ECTS credits to 30 per semester, even if the student is pursuing a SIMULTANEOUS DOUBLE DEGREE at the USPCEU. However, in all cases, the number of credits submitted for recognition at a foreign university may not exceed 90 ECTS credits under any circumstances.*

Once students have selected their study abroad program, they will attend information sessions organized by the Office of the Vice President for Academic Affairs and/or the faculty to plan their Learning Agreement (LA) at the host university. The planning of courses to be recognized will take into account the number of credits to be earned, as well as the competencies and learning objectives of the courses offered at the host institution. Students must carefully review the course offerings with their coordinator.

The Learning Agreement may be modified on an exceptional basis upon arrival at the host institution, due to unforeseen circumstances such as changes in the course offerings or to better accommodate class attendance, with the approval of their faculty's international coordinator. It is the student's responsibility to verify that their academic record at CEU and their course registration at the host institution match the provisions of the Learning Agreement and the corresponding courses, as well as to be aware of the courses in their study plan and any pending courses that, if applicable, they must take during and/or after the mobility period. Students must also inform their academic coordinator of any errors detected at the beginning of the mobility semester.

The student will enroll at the host university in the number of courses necessary to meet the minimum and maximum ECTS requirements. The following circumstances may also apply:

- Learning Agreement with a higher credit load registered at the host institution: For the purposes of credit recognition, students may occasionally need to register for more credits at the host institution than they took at USPCEU if the credit loads of the courses are not comparable. It is not recommended to enroll in courses worth more than 10% of the credits enrolled at USPCEU; however, learning agreements with higher credit loads may be approved.
- Learning Agreement by Course Groups: Students may take groups of courses at the host institution to be recognized as a single CEU course, or take a single course at the host institution that is recognized as multiple CEU courses, provided that the total number of credits taken at the host institution is equal to or greater than that corresponding to the CEU courses.

Similarly, recognition may be granted for blocks of courses, provided that the total number of credits at the host institution is equal to or greater than the total number of credits to be recognized at CEU; a one-to-one correspondence between the courses is not required. However, it will be verified that the combined content of the courses at the host institution covers the expected development of competencies for the set of courses at USPCEU.

- Learning Agreement with undergraduate and graduate-level courses at the host institution: Undergraduate students may, on occasion—if permitted by the host university—enroll in graduate-level courses; in such cases, they must be aware of the demands and rigor that these courses may entail.
- Special Learning Agreement with a reduced credit load for courses taken at the host institution. In the case of courses that overlap to a very high degree in content and competencies, and provided there are no alternative courses available at the host institution, students will be permitted, on an exceptional basis, to enroll abroad in courses totaling a maximum of ECTS (or its equivalent credit unit at the host institution) slightly lower than the total for CEU courses, without in any case exceeding a total difference of 10% in ECTS credits enrolled between the two universities. The faculty's international academic coordinator will have the final say on whether it is feasible to recognize courses with a total credit load lower than that of the CEU courses. This measure will be applied only in exceptional and justified cases, provided that both the absence of alternative course options and the overlap in content and competencies between the CEU course and the course to be taken at the host institution are demonstrated. Enrollment in fewer credits will not be accepted generally.

In any case, the faculty's academic coordinator will validate the credit load deemed most appropriate for the student, and the student must abide by the faculty's decision. It is the student's responsibility to verify that the mobility learning agreement is complete with up-to-date information from the host university. The student may request a modification to the agreement in this regard if, upon arrival at the host institution, the courses or credit load differ from what was originally specified.

If the student does not enroll in all CEU courses at the host university, the student is responsible for contacting the professor at their faculty to follow the CEU courses synchronously or asynchronously, as determined by the professor. It is the student's responsibility to undertake independent study of those courses not included in the learning agreement but listed on their CEU registration.

2.2.3 Exams During the Mobility Period

Students must follow the instructions provided by both CEU University and the host university regarding the format for taking exams for the courses in which they are enrolled, during both the regular and special exam periods. If exams are in-person (whether at CEU or at the host university), students must take full responsibility for any travel that this requirement may entail, during both the regular and/or make-up exam periods.

In all cases, students must remain in contact with the professor of their CEU or partner institution courses, their international academic coordinator, and/or their faculty to obtain authorization to take exams remotely or on dates other than the official ones (due to travel, overlapping dates or schedules, or other reasons). The USPCEU and/or the host university will make the decision deemed appropriate in the case of special requests—upon submission of supporting documentation—regarding exam dates or the format of the exam. Generally, the official schedules and exam formats established by the university for all students will be followed.

3. Exceptional Situations

3.1. Students on Their Second or Third Mobility Period

USPCEU students who have already participated in an international exchange program during their university studies, or who are currently studying abroad during the academic year preceding the one referred to in these Guidelines, may apply for this Call for Applications. Such students will be considered students on their second or third exchange.

Students on their second or third exchange may choose an exchange placement once students who have not previously participated in a study abroad program have selected their placements.

3.1.2 Students who withdrew from their exchange program and/or were unable to participate in the previous call for applications due to personal academic reasons or other circumstances

Students who had to withdraw from their mobility program in the previous call for applications or were unable to participate for justified reasons may reapply for a mobility program on an equal footing with first-time mobility students, based on their academic record and language proficiency.

3.2. Changes to the Number of Available Spots and Cases of Force Majeure

Students should be aware that at the time of spot allocation for each faculty, the availability of spots under certain agreements may be altered due to reasons related to the implementation of agreements signed with partner institutions, circumstances of force majeure, or requirements of the partner university. In such cases, the USPCEU will offer students a similar alternative at other destinations and/or give them the option to apply for a spot the following academic year on a priority basis.

USPCEU reserves the right to allocate mobility spots flexibly across faculties and related fields of study; thus, if a faculty does not select in the first round, the University is under no obligation to offer those same spots in the second round, as they may be offered to students from other faculties or other degree programs within the same faculty.

3.3. Duration of Mobility and Limit on Stays Abroad

A student may participate in a maximum of 12 months of mobility per academic cycle under the Erasmus+ program (with funding available through an Erasmus+ grant for up to 7 months). This mobility may be spread over more than one academic year and at different destinations.

Additionally, students may participate in further mobility periods (semester-long or annual) through bilateral agreements signed by the university, depending on the type of degree program they are pursuing.

Only two mobility periods to the same country are permitted if they combine study and internship mobility, or in cases involving well-justified exceptional circumstances.

3.3.1 240 ECTS Bachelor's Degrees (4 years) or MECES Level 2

USPCEU students enrolled in 240 ECTS bachelor's degree programs (4 years²) may participate in up to three academic stays at foreign universities during their undergraduate studies; however, study mobility periods may not be undertaken at the same foreign university or in the same country.

² The European Higher Education Area (EHEA) organizes university degrees into three cycles—Bachelor's, Master's, and Doctorate—based on the ECTS credit system, which facilitates recognition among European universities. In Spain, the Spanish Qualifications Framework for Higher Education (MECES) establishes four levels: the Bachelor's degree (level 2, 240 ECTS, 4 years) and some longer degree programs, such as Medicine or Pharmacy, reach level 3; the Master's degree corresponds to level 3, and the Doctorate to level 4.

3.3.2 Concurrent Bachelor's Degrees (Double Degrees)

Students pursuing two bachelor's degrees simultaneously (double degree) may participate in a maximum number of study abroad periods at foreign universities, the total duration of which shall in no case exceed 24 months (which may be combined as 12 months of Erasmus+ mobility and another 12 months under a bilateral agreement); the study abroad period shall not exceed 12 months for each degree being pursued simultaneously.

3.3.3 Degree programs exceeding 240 ECTS (5 or 6 years) at MECES Level 3 (and their dual degree programs): architecture, pharmacy, and medicine

Students in degree programs worth more than 240 ECTS credits and their dual-degree programs can participate in study abroad stays of up to 24 months through the Erasmus+ program, since in this case 12 months are considered for the first-cycle degree and 12 months for the second-cycle degree.

3.3.4 Special Mobility Programs or International Dual Degrees

In the specific case of students in International Dual Degree programs or other special on-campus international programs lasting one semester, the mobility period will be considered a completed study abroad stay.

3.4. Scholarships for Academic Excellence

Students who receive scholarships awarded by the University based on maintaining an excellent academic record (Merit Scholarships) are not exempt from meeting the program's academic requirements during the year in which they participate in an international mobility program. However, their inability to participate in on-campus activities for the University during their mobility period will be excused. Likewise, students who have participated in an international mobility program (Erasmus+ or bilateral agreement) during the academic year immediately preceding their renewal application may, on an exceptional basis, be exempted from the GPA requirement, provided they meet all of the following conditions: 1) Have passed all courses enrolled in at the host university; 2) Have earned at least 24 ECTS credits at that foreign institution; 3) Provide proof that the stay has been recognized by the home university in accordance with mobility procedures; 4) Maintain a GPA similar to that required for scholarship renewal.

However, no specific grade is set as a minimum threshold, thus allowing for a more flexible and context-sensitive assessment of academic performance during the mobility period. This exemption will not affect the other conditions required for renewal, which must be met in full. This criterion reflects an established practice in international mobility contexts that applies principles of flexibility in the evaluation of academic performance, recognizing both the educational value of the experience and the specific characteristics of foreign evaluation systems.

4. Failure to Meet Requirements

If a student does not meet the academic requirements of this Call for Applications, at the end of the corresponding academic year (after the closing of the records for the extraordinary session), the student will be removed from the mobility program.

In any case, the student may request an extraordinary review of the denial of mobility from the Office of the Vice Rector for Internationalization. This request must be submitted in the form of a written petition addressed to the Office of the Vice Rector (erasmus@ceu.es), accompanied by the relevant documentation for evaluation. The student must abide by the decision of the Office of the Vice Rector, which will take into account the student's academic performance and any relevant circumstances to approve or deny the mobility application, as appropriate.

5. Language Proficiency

To be eligible for an exchange position, the student must submit a valid official language certificate for the language in which they will participate in the international mobility program (see Annex II).

Requirements for universities that conduct instruction in English, French, and German:

Students must demonstrate a minimum B2 level by November 20, 2026, through the language Proficiency form (see accepted certificates in Annex II). Students whose native language is French, English, or German and who are applying for a mobility program to a country where instruction is conducted in their native language must demonstrate a B2 level on the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages (or a higher level as required by the host university). This requirement is met if the student is currently pursuing or has previously completed studies (at the university level, high school, or other levels) in that language. These students must also complete the language form to be included in the corresponding ranking.

Requirements for Universities that Conduct Classes in Italian and Portuguese:

- A) Students who wish to select destinations where instruction is in Italian or Portuguese and who hold a certificate demonstrating a minimum B2 level or have completed high school or other studies in that language must also provide proof of this by November 20, 2026, on the form; they will be given priority in selecting a destination where the language they have demonstrated proficiency in is taught. This scoring system is based on a total of 100 points (up to 70 points for academic record and up to 30 points for language proficiency).
- B) All other students may also choose destinations in these languages during a second selection process (in which only the academic record is considered), and must demonstrate, prior to their exchange, a minimum B1 level (no later than September 1, 2027, if the exchange takes place in the first semester, and no later than February 1, 2028, if the exchange takes place in the second semester; see Annex II).

Requirements for universities that conduct their instruction in Spanish: Students must demonstrate a B2 level on the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages (or a higher level, as required by the host university). This requirement is met if students are pursuing a bachelor's degree in Spanish at USPCEU and/or if they have previously completed studies (high school or other) in Spanish. In that case, the student will not need to provide proof of language proficiency. If the student does not meet the above requirements, they must submit a Spanish language certificate demonstrating at least a B2 level by September 1, 2027, if the exchange takes place in the first semester and by February 1, 2028, if the exchange takes place in the second semester (see Annex II). Furthermore, the following specific cases will be considered:

- Universities in the United States, Canada, Australia, the United Kingdom, and some in Asia and Europe have their own language requirements, which are typically official TOEFL and/or IELTS certificates issued no more than two years ago, although in certain cases they also accept other certificates. The required TOEFL or IELTS score varies by university. The Vice Rectorate of Internationalization will provide information on the specific requirements before students select their mobility placements.
- If a student has demonstrated their language proficiency with an official certificate other than the one required by the host university, a very brief, one-time extension will be granted to meet the language requirement, with a deadline of the second round of mobility placement selection. The Vice rectorate of Internationalization will inform students of this date. This grace period will only be granted to students who have already demonstrated the required language proficiency; it does not apply to students who need to improve their language skills.

We recommend checking the specific language requirements on the Language Center's website or on the intranet.

Students must comply at all times with the language requirements established by their host universities.

6. Selection of Exchange Placements

The Vice Rectorate of Internationalization will offer exchange spots classified according to the courses that can be taken and the languages in which instruction is provided at the host universities.

The Office of the Vice Rector for Internationalization will organize the mobility placements by language. This organization will be referred to as the “placement offer.” The languages used for classification will be: English, French, German, Italian, Portuguese, and “no language” (for destinations where classes are taught in Italian, Portuguese, and Spanish). Likewise, a preferential mobility offer may be established (for undergraduate scholarship recipients, groups of excellence, and other groups for which this has been established), as detailed in point eight of the Terms and Conditions.

On the day of selection, students may apply for multiple spots, up to the number of rankings in which they appear based on their classification according to the selection criteria.

The University will provide applicants with an updated list of available spots prior to their selection. Students should be aware that, at the time of spot allocation for each faculty, the availability of spots under certain agreements may change due to reasons related to the implementation of agreements signed with partner institutions, circumstances of force majeure, or requirements of the partner university. In such cases, the USPCEU will offer students a similar alternative at other institutions and/or give them the option to apply for a spot in the following academic year on a priority basis.

7. Selection Criteria

The selection criteria for the allocation of spots are applied according to the following guidelines:

1. Academic Record: The student’s grade point average (GPA) upon completion of the academic year preceding the year in which the mobility program is requested. In the case of students enrolled in a dual degree program, the GPA for the dual degree will be considered, even if the mobility program is undertaken for only one of the degrees.

The system used follows a calculation model equivalent to that used in the Ministry of Education (MEC) grading scales, based on a weighted average by ECTS credits of the courses actually taken and graded within the eligible academic record (including failed courses). At , this criterion does not include recognized or validated credits resulting from academic record transfers, changes in degree programs, or other academic recognition procedures. In this regard, recognized credits are not included in the calculation of the average since they come from different programs of study or do not belong to the same degree program—as is the case with academic record transfers, changes in degree programs, or other academic recognition procedures—given that the goal is to compare academic records in a uniform manner within a competitive process. The application of this criterion, which is standard in calls for public grants, responds to the need to ensure a consistent, objective, and comparable system for all students participating in the selection process. The University retrieves the average GPA data from the SIGMA system (value: “20 MEC Scholarships with failing grades”)

Maximum 70 points:

- A maximum of 70 points will be awarded if the student has a cumulative GPA of 10 out of 10.

2. Language Proficiency (only for study abroad destinations: English, French, German, Italian, and Portuguese)

Maximum 30 points: The scoring based on language proficiency will be as follows:

C2 - 30 points

C1 - 20 points

B2 - 10 points

TOTAL: 70 POINTS (ranking of destinations with no language requirement prior to selecting a spot: destinations taught in Spanish, Italian, or Portuguese). For students applying for a spot where language proficiency is not required prior to selection, the scoring scale is based on 70 points.

TOTAL: 100 POINTS (ranking of destinations with instruction in English, French, German, Italian, and Portuguese). For students applying for a position where instruction is provided in these languages, the scoring scale is based on 100 points.

8. Selection of exchange students

The provisional list of admitted students for each faculty will be published, by language, in descending order of scores, based on the results obtained by the students during the selection process.

Students may file an appeal against the decision regarding the list of admitted students with the Office of the Vice Rector for Internationalization within seven calendar days of the date of its publication. The Office of the Vice Rector for Internationalization will resolve the appeals, and the final list of admitted students will be published thereafter.

For certain degree programs (groups of excellence, international tracks, or others), the faculties may agree with the Office of the Vice Rector for Internationalization on an alternative procedure for allocating spots, which, in all cases, will be based on the students' merit and ability, in accordance with their academic performance and language proficiency.

9. Allocation of Placements

Students admitted following the selection process may participate in the allocation of available spots based on the score obtained in the selection exams. These spots will be offered by degree program and academic year. Similarly, there may be specific selection processes for certain special groups (groups of excellence and international tracks).

Depending on the availability of spots, the Office of the Vice Rector for Internationalization may conduct several selection processes for spots each academic year, and students will be informed of these. At a minimum, two spot-selection processes will be held each academic year.

There will be as many rankings as there are language tests administered, as well as a specific ranking for spots at Italian, Portuguese, and Ibero-American universities, which will include all students who have passed the selection process.

Students may only keep one spot selected during the destination selection process, although they may apply for another spot (in a different language ranking) by releasing the one they previously chose.

In some cases, and only with prior approval from the relevant academic coordinator, students may request, at the time their placement is assigned, that a one-year placement be assigned as a semester-long one, always considering the criteria of the host universities.

Students may request an extension of their stay from a semester-long to a full-year exchange at the host university, if spots are available and this extension meets the academic requirements established by their faculty.

The student must formally confirm acceptance of the spot to the Office of the Vice Rector for Internationalization, following the procedure established by that office. If the student does not confirm the spot within the established deadline, it will be understood that they are declining the assigned spot.

The Vice Rectorate for Internationalization will conduct a second round in which all admitted students may participate, regardless of whether they were assigned a spot during the first round. In this second round, the process followed in the first round will be repeated, so that students who wish to do so may apply for any spots that have remained vacant or for those that have been vacated by other students since the initial assignment.

Students in dual-degree programs must choose which degree program they will pursue during their exchange. The host university may restrict their ability to enroll in courses from multiple faculties or degree programs; in such cases, they must take the CEU courses for the second concurrent degree remotely, if possible, through their home faculty.

Once the placement process has been fully completed—including the two placement rounds and the issuance of the acceptance letter—it will not be possible to change the international exchange destination, except in cases of force majeure on the part of the student (properly documented), the USPCEU, and/or the host university. In the event of force majeure, the USPCEU will offer the student an alternative mobility option during the academic year of this call for applications or in subsequent calls.

The student's final placement at the host university will, in any case, be subject to fulfillment of the required academic and language conditions and to the final decision of the host university, which must confirm the student's admission as an international exchange student.

10. Erasmus+ and international Credential

The accreditation of USPCEU students as exchange students will not be final until the student receives the ERASMUS+ CREDENTIAL (Erasmus+ Agreements) or the INTERNATIONAL CREDENTIAL (Bilateral Agreements or Special Bilateral Programs).

These credentials will be issued at the end of the academic year prior to the mobility period, once it has been verified that the student meets all the criteria required in this Mobility Call and has been definitively accepted at the host university.

The USPCEU will not be responsible for any expenses a student may have incurred in connection with their mobility credential (housing, living expenses, travel, payment of additional fees at the destination, health insurance, or others).

11. Housing and Visas.

The USPCEU is not responsible for students' housing at the host university. All arrangements related to housing must be made directly with the host university or by the student on their own, if the host university does not offer housing services. It is the student's responsibility to secure housing by the start date of the mobility program.

12. Comprehensive Travel Insurance

To participate in an international exchange program, you must have comprehensive travel insurance that is valid in the destination country. Please note that at some universities, students are required to purchase the insurance policy offered by the host university.

Students agree to submit a copy of their insurance policy before the start of their exchange, within the established deadline (approximately one month before departure), to the International Mobility Office of the Office of the Vice Rector, as an essential condition for participating in and benefiting from the exchange. The documentation must be submitted by uploading a copy of the insurance policy to the following link: Erasmus+/Bilateral Documentation Submission \(office.com\).

Students have the option to purchase comprehensive travel insurance through the USPCEU by sending a request to the following email address: erasmus@ceu.es. The USPCEU does not cover the cost of the comprehensive travel insurance purchased by the student.

13. Students in their final years

Students in their final year who choose a one-year, or second-semester mobility program must follow the terms and conditions established by their faculty regarding the Final Degree Project (TFG), as this project cannot be credited toward any course at the host university. Likewise, they must meet the requirements established by their faculty regarding mandatory curricular internships if such internships are required for their degree program. Academic coordinators and program directors will advise students if their exchange requires any adjustments to the semesters in which these internships are to be completed.

The issuance of a degree to a student in their final year will depend on the date the host university submits the student's official transcript (Transcript of Records).

14. Obligations of Students Participating in Mobility Programs

Students who have been awarded an international mobility placement under this call for applications must fulfill the following obligations:

Before beginning their mobility stay and throughout their entire stay in the host country, students must periodically review the travel recommendations published by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, European Union, and Cooperation, paying special attention to any security, health, or other alerts. It is also recommended that students identify in advance the relevant Spanish Embassy or Consulate in the host country and record its contact information for emergencies. It is also advisable to register with the Travelers' Registry to facilitate location and consular assistance if needed. The purpose of these recommendations is to provide students with relevant information about their destination. These travel recommendations are not legally binding and serve merely as a warning or advice. No trip abroad can be considered entirely safe, and the decision to travel is the sole responsibility of the student, who must at all times follow the instructions of the host university during their stay.

In addition, before departing, students must complete certain procedures related to their enrollment and insurance, as explained below:

The required TOEFL or IELTS score varies by university. The Vice Rectorate of Internationalization will provide the specific requirements for each institution before students select their placements. Students should check the required level when choosing a placement.

Recommendation: If you are unsure which English certificate to obtain, we recommend choosing the TOEFL or IELTS, as they are the most widely recognized and accepted by most universities.

Region 12: Canadá: €700/month

Region 13: United Kingdom: €350/month

Large Families: Students who can prove they are from a large family may apply for additional funding. This amount is not guaranteed, as it will depend on the final budget allocated by the European Commission to the USPCEU for the academic year covered by this call for applications.

Eco-friendly travel (sustainable mobility): Students whose travel to and from their destination has a lower environmental impact may receive additional funding (4 additional days of the grant), provided they submit documentation proving the environmental impact of their trip (low-emission modes of transportation for the
